Originally from Los Angeles, California. Sean Casilli has managed integrations and business acquisitions of every shape and size. He also found his humanity while working in health care for 15 years. Sean is proud to have served on his local board of REALTORS education committee in 2019. Sean's taste for Luxury is probably genetic, if not osmosed. As a young man, his senior family members were extremely successful and discrete in business with celebrities and VIPs of Hollywood. Sean made his own way by cutting his teeth in business at EarthLink during the dot-com boom. After which, he took up a medical career as a Sonographer with a specialty in Cardiac and Vascular. His next career would be in e-commerce. Sean developed a thriving business, during a time when many established businesses closed their doors due to recession. Today, Sean has relocated from Southern California to the warmer waters of Florida's emerald coast. He has achieved his own success in the Luxury Real Estate Market in what seemed to be by many - 'The most impossible of circumstances.' Sean's commitment to, and passion for his profession is a source of inspiration to his clients and peers alike. He enjoys writing, continuing education, 360 photography, videography, boat watching, food and wine, travel, shopping, and flying his UAS.
